Image Scaling Using an Array of Processing Elements

Rafael Maestre

A technique to perform image scaling using an array of processing elements is provided. The pixel values in a video line are re-ordered such that when broadcast to the array of processing elements, they may each be processed according to the same multiply-and-accumulate coefficient set.